

English for international calls in Business Logic

With TEHESO, Business Logic employees handle conference calls with foreign clients in a clear and stress-free way.

Business Logic is an IT company from Zlín developing software for companies around the world. Its clientele is mainly located in the banking and financial environment. This means a high demand for quality work, which must be properly communicated.

Daniel Pekař, project manager at Business Logic knows this. “With the increasing number of international conference calls, it was an appropriate time to work on our own language skills.”

Daniel was given the task of ensuring a good English language program to help him in his work.

“I tried three services offering English lessons or conversations with native speakers online. The decision fell on TEHESO for their individual approach, Czech background and especially their quality teachers with professional education. After years, I became a student again. One-on-one lessons are great! I would recommend it!”

Significant shift from any level

For students with TEHESO, it does not matter whether they are new to English or are already advanced and want to improve their language skills. American lecturers have extensive experience. For each individual lesson, the student is given maximum attention, which significantly shifts the student’s level. He improves not only his knowledge of English, but also his confidence in speaking.
